INSTRUCTIONS – SUPER GUARANTEE CHARGE (SGC) STATEMENT

BEFORE YOU START

CALCULATING THE SUPER GUARANTEE (SG) SHORTFALL

1 An employer needs to provide at least a minimum level of superannuation to their employees each quarter by the quarterly cut-off date. This amount is calculated as the employee's ordinary time earnings for the quarter multiplied by the applicable super guarantee (SG) rate.
2 Where SG isn't paid in full by the quarterly cut-off date (i.e. 28th day of the month AFTER the end of the quarter) you are liable to pay the super guarantee charge (SGC) and are required by law to lodge the SGC statement.
3 The SGC charge is made up of:
- SG shortfall amounts (including any choice liability) calculated based on your employee's salary or wages
- nominal interest on those amounts (currently 10% per annum)

4 How much super to pay has more details and examples of how to calculate an employee's individual SG shortfall.

ORDINARY TIME EARNINGS VERSUS SALARY OR WAGES

1 If you need to lodge a SGC statement because you didn't pay sufficient SG for your employees by the quarterly cut-off date, the SG shortfall for the employee must be calculated based on a potentially higher amount of earnings. The SG shortfall must be calculated on the full salary or wages paid to the employee for the quarter and not the ordinary time earnings (OTE).
2 You can use the checklist on our website to help identify which payments form part of OTE and which payments form part of salary or wages.
3 Where you require more detail than provided in the checklist you can refer to Superannuation Guarantee Ruling 2009/2.

MAXIMUM CONTRIBUTIONS BASE

The maximum contribution base (MCB) is used by the ATO to ensure that only amounts which fall under the SGC are administered by the ATO.

2 The application of the MCB ensures that employers do not become liable for increased nominal interest for amounts over the minimum legislative Super guarantee percentage.
3 Any unpaid super amounts over the minimum legislative rate Super guarantee percentage should be paid directly to the employees' super funds.

CHOICE LIABILITY AND STAPLED FUNDS

Released under FOI Act 1982
Australian Taxation Office

1 Many employees are entitled to choose the fund employers pay their super contributions into. As their employer, you need to identify these employees and provide them with a standard choice form so they can advise you of their chosen fund.
2 From 1 November 2021, if you have new employees start and they don't choose a super fund, you may have an extra step to take to comply with choice of fund rules. You may need to request their 'stapled super fund' details from us. For more information visit Stapled super funds for employers.
3 Where you have failed to meet your choice obligations you must pay a choice liability equal to 25% of the employee SG shortfall (limited to $500 per notice period per employee).

LATE PAYMENTS

1 If you made a payment after the cut-off date you can use it by either claiming a late payment offset or carrying the payment forward as a prepayment for a future quarter. Visit Late super guarantee payment options for more information.
2 If you claim a late payment offset you must also disclose the relevant shortfall for the employee. Do not disclose the employee late payment offet amount by itself.

3 Note that once you have elected to claim a late payment offset for any given employee, the late payment:
- is no longer tax-deductible
- can't be treated as an early payment or pre-payment for any other quarter
- can't subsequently be reduced or revoked.

4 For any employee late payment offset claimed please advise the date of late payment in a separate secure mail message to the one you are lodging the SGC statement for (see CREATING A NEW MAIL MESSAGE below).

PART 7 PENALTY

1 SGC statements must be lodged by the due date.
If you lodge your SGC statement late, or fail to provide a statement or information when we ask for it during an audit, you are liable for a penalty
2 (Part 7 penalty). The maximum penalty is 200% of the SGC.

USING THE SGC STATEMENT

INSTRUCTIONS

1 To allow the nominal interest component to auto-calculate, ensure you complete the 'Date of lodgment' field within the 'Employer details' tab.
2 Ensure you complete one separate spreadsheet for every quarter that you need to report for. Do not complete multiple spreadsheets for the same quarter or provide information that does not relate to the quarter you are reporting for.
3 To avoid any processing delays DO NOT add any additional columns, formulas or macros into the spreadsheet.
4 Provide as much detail as possible for ALL employees with a super guarantee shortfall for the period. Every employee must have a value in either the SG shortfall or Choice liability column.
5 This form can calculate nominal interest for up to a maximum of 3,000 employees.
6 Where you need to add additional rows to the Employee details tab to include further employees to your form, follow these steps:
a) Highlight the row where you would like to insert the additional rows (any row above the Totals row)
b) Press the Ctrl + Plus buttons if you have a numeric keypad on your keyboard OR press Ctrl + Shift + Plus

Released under FOI Act 1982 Australian Taxation Office

c) Repeat Step 2 until you've added the desired number of rows.

7 Check the Totals page is correct. If there are any #NUM! errors on the Totals page, you will need to correct your form by adding the Date of lodgment and Period ended fields.

DATE OF LODGMENT

1 Where you intend on submitting the SGC statement via secure mail, ensure that the Date of lodgment field reflects the date the form is attached to the mail message and sent to the ATO.

2 Where you are unable to submit the SGC statement electronically, you may need to set the date of lodgment to several days after the date of postage in order to allow the nominal interest to take the number of days it takes to be received by the ATO.

AMENDING THE SG SHORTFALL FOR AN EMPLOYEE TO NIL

1 Note that if you are intending to amend a previously established shortfall for an employee to nil, you will need to include the employee within the SGC statement with a SG shortfall of $0. If you do not include the employee, we will not change the previously reported SG shortfall.

PAYMENT INSTRUCTIONS

1 If this is the first time you have lodged a SGC statement, refer to the How to pay table on the Totals tab or visit our website for information on how to obtain your payment reference number (PRN).

2 You can minimise the general interest charge (GIC) that accrues on any outstanding SGC by making your payment straight away.

EMPLOYEE FUND INFORMATION

1 Our systems will locate the most suitable superannuation provider for each employee that you have disclosed and paid SG shortfalls for. If we are unable to locate a suitable superannuation provider for the employee we will contact them requesting this information.

1 An employer needs to provide at least a minimum level of superannuation to their employees each quarter by the quarterly cut-off date. This amount is calculated as the employee's ordinary time earnings for the quarter multiplied by the
2 Where SG isn't paid in full by the quarterly cut-off date (i.e. 28th day of the month AFTER the end of the quarter) you are liable to pay the super guarantee charge (SGC) and are required by law to lodge the SGC statement.
3 The SGC charge is made up of:
- SG shortfall amounts (including any choice liability) calculated based on your employee's salary or wages
- nominal interest on those amounts (currently 10% per annum)

4 How much super to pay has more details and examples of how to calculate an employee's individual SG shortfall.

ORDINARY TIME EARNINGS VERSUS SALARY OR WAGES

1 If you need to lodge a SGC statement because you didn't pay sufficient SG for your employees by the quarterly cut-off date, the SG shortfall for the employee must be calculated based on a potentially higher amount of earnings. The SG shortfall must be calculated on the full salary or wages paid to the employee for the quarter and not the ordinary time
2 You can use the checklist on our website to help identify which payments form part of OTE and which payments form part of salary or
3 Where you require more detail than provided in the checklist you can refer to Superannuation Guarantee Ruling 2009/2.

MAXIMUM CONTRIBUTIONS BASE

The maximum contribution base (MCB) is used by the ATO to ensure that only amounts which fall under the SGC are
1 administered by the ATO.
2 The application of the MCB ensures that employers do not become liable for increased nominal interest for amounts over the minimum legislative Super guarantee percentage.
3 Any unpaid super amounts over the minimum legislative rate Super guarantee percentage should be paid directly to the employees' super funds.

CHOICE LIABILITY AND STAPLED FUNDS

1 Many employees are entitled to choose the fund employers pay their super contributions into. As their employer, you need to identify these employees and provide them with a standard choice form so they can advise you of their chosen fund.
2 From 1 November 2021, if you have new employees start and they don't choose a super fund, you may have an extra step to take to comply with choice of fund rules. You may need to request their 'stapled super fund' details from us. For more information visit Stapled
3 Where you have failed to meet your choice obligations you must pay a choice liability equal to 25% of the employee SG shortfall (limited to $500 per notice period per employee).

LATE PAYMENTS

1 If you made a payment after the cut-off date you can use it by either claiming a late payment offset or carrying the payment forward as a prepayment for a future quarter. Visit Late super guarantee payment options for more information.
2 If you claim a late payment offset you must also disclose the relevant shortfall for the employee. Do not disclose the employee late payment offet amount by itself.
3 Note that once you have elected to claim a late payment offset for any given employee, the late payment:
- is no longer tax-deductible
- can't be treated as an early payment or pre-payment for any other quarter
- can't subsequently be reduced or revoked.

4 For any employee late payment offset claimed please advise the date of late payment in a separate secure mail message to the one you are lodging the SGC statement for (see CREATING A NEW MAIL MESSAGE below).

PART 7 PENALTY

1 SGC statements must be lodged by the due date.
If you lodge your SGC statement late, or fail to provide a statement or information when we ask for it during an audit, you
2 are liable for a penalty (Part 7 penalty). The maximum penalty is 200% of the SGC.

Important Information

We've sent you this letter because we received new information and used this to reassess your superannuation guarantee additional charge for the quarter ended 31 March 2022.

The most common reasons that result in changes to the amount we initially assessed are as follows:

- An objection you lodged against your superannuation guarantee charge assessment
- A request by you to remit some or all of the superannuation guarantee additional charge
- A review of your case
- Evidence of additional superannuation guarantee charge obligations
- Your choice liability may have been reduced because you have demonstrated a genuine effort to comply with the choice of superannuation requirements or written to the Commissioner of Taxation to exercise his discretion for any reduction in the choice liability.

Additional superannuation guarantee charge obligations
If you fail to provide a statement or information when we ask for it during an audit, you are liable for a penalty. The maximum penalty is 200% of the amount of the charge payable.

Do you need to make another payment
You should refer to your account statement to find out if you need to make another payment. The account statement provides you with the current status of your account, including any general interest charge added for overdue payments.

Objections
If you object to our assessment, you need to write to us by 14 February 2025 and provide detailed reasons why you believe the legislation has been incorrectly applied, with all relevant supporting records (see our website at www.ato.gov.au/object), and send it to the reply to address on the front of this notice.

Please also ensure you sign the objection yourself and quote the 'Our reference', 7154944687146, in your correspondence to us.

Interest of 11.38% will still accrue on outstanding amounts.

Important Information

We've sent you this letter because we received new information and used this to reassess your superannuation guarantee additional charge for the quarter ended 31 December 2022.

The most common reasons that result in changes to the amount we initially assessed are as follows:

- An objection you lodged against your superannuation guarantee charge assessment
- A request by you to remit some or all of the superannuation guarantee additional charge
- A review of your case
- Evidence of additional superannuation guarantee charge obligations
- Your choice liability may have been reduced because you have demonstrated a genuine effort to comply with the choice of superannuation requirements or written to the Commissioner of Taxation to exercise his discretion for any reduction in the choice liability.

Additional superannuation guarantee charge obligations
If you fail to provide a statement or information when we ask for it during an audit, you are liable for a penalty. The maximum penalty is 200% of the amount of the charge payable.

Do you need to make another payment
You should refer to your account statement to find out if you need to make another payment. The account statement provides you with the current status of your account, including any general interest charge added for overdue payments.

Objections
If you object to our assessment, you need to write to us by 17 February 2025 and provide detailed reasons why you believe the legislation has been incorrectly applied, with all relevant supporting records (see our website at www.ato.gov.au/object), and send it to the reply to address on the front of this notice.

Please also ensure you sign the objection yourself and quote the 'Our reference', 7154979164978, in your correspondence to us.

Interest of 11.38% will still accrue on outstanding amounts.

27 March 2024

We are auditing your superannuation obligations and plan to take action

Dear Simon,

We sent you a letter dated 25 January 2024 asking you to lodge superannuation guarantee charge (SGC) statements. You have not responded. We have now started an audit of your business for the period 1 July 2022 – 31 December 2023 to check if you have met your super guarantee obligations.

We called you on 12 March 2024, 15 March 2024 and 21 March 2024 to talk about your superannuation guarantee (SG) obligations, but we have not been able to get in contact with you.

Superannuation guarantee is an employee entitlement and not a Commonwealth revenue, which means not pursuing this entitlement has an adverse impact for employees. A delay in actioning any unpaid SG also disadvantages you the employer, as nominal interest will continue to accrue until an SGC statement is lodged.

If you don't respond to this letter

We will raise SGC assessments for the period under audit, based on information available to us. This includes nominal interest and administration components, and any payments made for these quarters will not be considered.

Significant penalties apply

Under superannuation law, employers must lodge an SGC statement and pay the SGC to us if they:

- don't pay an employee's SG amount in full, on time and to the right fund
- haven't met the choice of fund requirements by the applicable dates.

The SGC includes three components:

- the SG shortfall for all eligible employees
- nominal interest of 10% and
- an administration fee of $20 for each employee, per quarter.

The Part 7 penalty, required by law, will be added to your SGC, which could be up to 200% of your SGC. We can also charge you an additional penalty for any error or omission you make on your SGC statement.

What you need to do

Lodge any outstanding SGC statements now

You must now complete and submit a SGC statement for each quarter you missed paying SG on time by 10 April 2024.

If you need to discuss this matter, you need to phone us before 10 April 2024.

Pay now if you have an SGC liability

If you have an SGC liability, we recommend you pay it in full to us straight away. A general interest charge (GIC) will be added each day until you pay your debt in full. The current GIC rate is 11.38%.

If you have paid the correct SG amount by the due date:

If you believe the super funds for all your employees for the quarters listed above have received the correct amount of SG by the due date, you should review your records to ensure you have met your obligations.

If you haven't paid the correct SG amount, including if you paid late

You need to register or log into Online services for business to:

- work out the SGC using salary and wages, not ordinary time earnings (may include overtime)
- complete and send us an SGC statement for each period
- pay any SGC directly to us when you lodge.

If you can't access Online services for business, go to ato.gov.au/SGC for help on how to work out, lodge and pay your SGC.

Make sure you keep a copy of your completed statements.

We expect to finish the audit by 10 July 2024, however, this will depend on the details of your case.

The action you take now can help to reduce the amount of any penalty

We'll consider:

- whether you have paid any SG to the employees' super fund, even if paid late. If so, you still need to lodge SGC statements and may be able to claim those late payments as late payment offsets. For more information see our website ato.gov.au/LPO
- if you've lodged SG charge statements for the period under audit
- if you've paid your SGC liability or entered into a payment arrangement. For payment options, visit ato.gov.au/paymentoptions

We've finished our super guarantee audit

› You have a debt with us

Dear Simon,

We've finished our audit of your superannuation guarantee (SG) obligations for the period 1 July 2022 – 31 December 2023.

Our audit shows that you haven't met all your SG obligations.

We've worked out the amount of super guarantee charge (SGC) you owe for the period 1 July 2022 – 31 December 2022 and will send you separate notices of assessment.

We have looked at the information in our records and have decided that we don't need to take any further action for the period 1 January 2023 – 31 December 2023 for this audit.

For your information, we've included a breakdown of the amount of super we believe you've underpaid for each of your employees.

As we've now worked out the amount you owe for the period of this audit, you don't need to make catch-up payments to your employee's super fund.

We explain our decision in the Reasons for Decision document, we've included with this letter.

What happens next

Finishing this audit doesn't mean we can't take further action if we need to.

You need to meet your obligations for the periods that haven't been part of this audit, including the current and future periods. You can find information to help you on our website at ato.gov.au/superforemployers

9. You haven’t lodged SGC statements for the relevant quarters covered by the audit.
10. You didn't lodge SGC statements after we asked you for the information and you didn't give us any relevant information to help us work out your SGC for the quarters covered by the audit.
11. We sent our Audit Notification letter on 27 March 2024 advising you of the audit for the period 1 July 2022 to 31 December 2023 where a response was required by 10 April 2024.
12. You have not responded to any of our telephone calls, SMS message and our audit notification letter.
13. Your business started on 17 June 2021, and you have an active ABN.
14. You were subject to previous compliance action, and you have not paid the liabilities raised during our previous audit in full.
15. We have raised SGC assessments for the period 1 July 2022 to 31 December 2022 based on ATO held information.

We formed our view by relying on this information

22. ATO records

Your views and contentions

23. You were uncontactable therefore we were unable to establish your views and contentions.

Application of the law to your circumstances

24. If you have a shortfall for a quarter the SGAA requires you to lodge an SGC statement on or before the due date for that particular quarter.
25. If you don’t lodge an SGC statement for a quarter, and we are of the opinion that you’re liable to pay the SGC, the SGAA allows us to make an assessment of your shortfall.

Released under FOI Act 1982 Australian Taxation Office

26. You didn't provide us with evidence to show you've met your super obligations for the period of this audit. We therefore consider you to have shortfalls and a requirement to lodge SGC statements.
27. You didn't lodge SGC statements in response to this audit. As a result, we have raised SGC assessments for the relevant periods.

Penalties and interest charges

28. By failing to lodge SGC statements by the relevant due dates a penalty, 200% of the SGC, is imposed by law.

Remission

29. The SGAA allows us to remit, all or part of the penalty. However, the law generally restricts us from remitting penalties beyond a certain limit where:
    - the quarter ends on or before 31 March 2018, and
    - we took compliance action to establish the amount of the shortfall for the quarter
30. In accordance with Practice Statement Law Administration PS LA 2021/3 our remission process takes into account:
    - whether you've made payments to employees' super funds and the timing of those payments
    - whether you've lodged SGC statements and when those were lodged
    - your compliance history
    - any other mitigating facts or circumstances

Your attempt to comply with your SG obligations - lodgment

31. In this instance you didn't provide us with information to assist us in making an assessment of your SGC liability. We've decided to remit your penalty by 25%.

Compliance history

32. Your SG compliance history will be given more weight than your compliance history for other taxation laws. When reviewing your SG compliance history we focus on:
    - the number of quarters for which you've failed to lodge an SGC statement by the due date, or for which we've made a default assessment
    - the degree of your attempt to comply with your SG obligations previously (not including your attempts to comply for the period being considered)
    - any previous SG audits conducted by us including outcomes, and
    - any shift in your behaviour if you've been subject to a previous audit.
33. The facts demonstrate that your compliance history for the past three years is neither good nor poor and we've not changed the penalty remission percentage from 25%.

Other mitigating facts and circumstances

34. Further remission can be considered where other mitigating circumstances exist that affected your ability to comply with your SG obligations. The factors include whether there were circumstances such as ill health, that affected your ability to comply with your super obligations, the extent of your non-compliance, or whether any payments were made to reduce your SGC liability.
35. We aren't aware of any other factors to take into consideration for a further decrease in the level of penalty. The penalty remission percentage has not been changed.

Penalty summary

36. A penalty, equal to 200% of your SGC, was imposed by law. We've decided to remit some of your penalty. Your final penalty is equal to 150% of your SGC. The table above demonstrates the amounts you now have to pay.

16 November 2022

We are auditing your superannuation obligations

Dear Simon,

We sent you a letter dated 28 July 2022 asking you to provide evidence or lodge superannuation guarantee (SG) charge statements. You have not responded.

We have now started an audit of your business for the period 1 January 2022 to 30 June 2022 to check if you have met your super guarantee obligations.

We called you on 8 November 2022, 9 November 2022 and 10 November 2022 to talk about your superannuation guarantee obligations, but we have not been able to get in contact with you.

Under superannuation law, employers must pay the SG charge to us if they:

- haven't paid enough super contributions for their eligible employees by the applicable dates
- haven't met the choice of fund requirements by the applicable dates.

The SG charge is a debt payable to us and includes three components:

- the superannuation guarantee shortfall for all eligible employees
- nominal interest of 10% and
- an administration fee of $20 for each employee, per quarter.

With so many Australians experiencing financial difficulty due to COVID-19, our priority is to provide help and support to those who need it most and we know many have been impacted by repeated and/or extended periods of lockdown. However, super guarantee is an employee entitlement and not a Commonwealth revenue, which means not pursuing this entitlement has an adverse impact for employees. A delay in actioning any unpaid super guarantee also disadvantages you the employer, as nominal interest will continue to accrue until an SG charge statement is lodged.

What you need to do

You need to give us evidence or lodge SG charge statements by 7 December 2022.

If you need to discuss this matter or seek an extension of time you need to phone us before 7 December 2022.

If you haven't paid the correct SG amount, including if you paid late

You need to register or log into Online services for business to:

- work out the SG charge using salary and wages
- complete and send us an SG charge statement for each period
- pay any SG charge directly to us when you lodge.

If you can't access Online services for business, go to ato.gov.au/SGC for help on how to work out, lodge and pay your SG charge.

We expect to finish the audit by 2 December 2022, however this will depend on the details of your case.

Significant penalties apply

If you do not give us the information we need or lodge an SG charge statement we will send you assessments for any SG charge we believe you owe us. This will include the nominal interest and administration components.

An extra penalty, required by law, will be added to your SG charge. This could be up to 200% of your SG charge. We can also charge you an additional penalty for any error or omission you make on your SG charge statement.

The action you take now can help to reduce the amount of any penalty. We'll consider:

- whether you have paid any SG to the employees' super fund, even if late. If so, you still need to lodge SG charge statements and may be able to claim those late payments as late payment offsets. For more information see our website ato.gov.au/LPO
- if you've lodged SG charge statements for the period under audit
- if you've paid your SGC liability or entered into a payment arrangement. For payment options, visit ato.gov.au/paymentoptions

We've finished our super guarantee audit

› You don't need to do anything further

sitive Personal Privacy

Dear Simon,

We've finished our audit of your superannuation guarantee (SG) obligations for the period 1 January 2022 to 30 June 2022.

Our audit shows that you haven't met all your super guarantee (SG) obligations.

We've worked out the amount of super guarantee charge (SGC) you owe and will send you separate notices of assessment.

For your information, we've included a breakdown of the amount of super we believe you have underpaid for each of your employees.

As we've now worked out the amount you owe for the period of this audit, you don't need to make catch-up payments to your employees' super funds.

We explain our decision in the 'Reasons for Decision' document, we've included with this letter.

Penalties

We may charge you large penalties if you don't meet your SG obligations.

As you didn't lodge your SGC statements on time, we'll charge you penalty of $39,485.46. We'll also send you separate notices for the penalty.

What happens next

Finishing this audit doesn't mean we can't take further action if we need to.

You need to meet your obligations for the periods that haven't been part of this audit, including the current and future periods. You can find information to help you on our website at ato.gov.au/superforemployers

SuperStream is the way businesses need to pay employees SG contributions to super funds. You can find out more on our website at ato.gov.au/super/superstream

11. You haven't lodged SGC statements for the relevant quarters covered by the audit.
12. You didn't lodge SGC statements after we asked you for the information and you didn't give us any relevant information to help us work out your SGC for the quarters covered by the audit.

WE FORMED OUR VIEW BY RELYING ON THIS INFORMATION

15. ATO records

YOUR VIEWS AND CONTENTIONS

16. You did not provide us with your views and contentions during the audit.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO YOUR CIRCUMSTANCES

17. If you have a shortfall for a quarter the SGAA requires you to lodge an SGC statement on or before the due date for that particular quarter.

Released under FOI Act 1982 Australian Taxation Office

18. If you don't lodge an SGC statement for a quarter, and we are of the opinion that you are liable to pay the SGC, the SGAA allows us to make an assessment of your shortfall.
19. You didn't provide us with evidence to show you have met your super obligations for the period of this audit. We therefore consider you to have shortfalls and a requirement to lodge SGC statements.
20. You didn't lodge SGC statements in response to this audit. As a result we have raised SGC assessments for the relevant periods.

Penalties and interest charges

21. By failing to lodge SGC statements by the relevant due dates a penalty, 200% of the SGC, is imposed by law.

Remission

22. The SGAA allows us to remit, all or part of the penalty. However, the law generally restricts us from remitting penalties beyond a certain limit where:
    - the quarter ends on or before 31 March 2018, and
    - we took compliance action to establish the amount of the shortfall for the quarter
23. In accordance with Practice Statement Law Administration PS LA 2021/3 our remission process takes into account:
    - whether you have made payments to employees' super funds and the timing of those payments
    - whether you have lodged SGC statements and when those were lodged
    - your compliance history
    - any other mitigating facts or circumstances

Your attempt to comply with your SG obligations - lodgment

24. In this instance you did not provide us with information to assist us in making an assessment of your SGC liability. We've decided to remit your penalty by 25%.

Compliance history

25. Your SG compliance history will be given more weight than your compliance history for other taxation laws. When reviewing your SG compliance history we focus on:
    - the number of quarters for which you have failed to lodge an SGC statement by the due date, or for which we have made a default assessment
    - the degree of your attempt to comply with your SG obligations previously (not including your attempts to comply for the period being considered)
    - any previous SG audits conducted by us including outcomes, and
    - any shift in your behaviour if you have been subject to a previous audit.
26. The facts demonstrate that your compliance history is good and we have decided to remit your penalty by a further 15%.

Other mitigating facts and circumstances

27. Further remission can be considered where other mitigating circumstances exist that affected your ability to comply with your SG obligations. The factors include whether there were circumstances such as ill health, that affected your ability to comply with your super obligations, the extent of your non-compliance, or whether any payments were made to reduce your SGC liability.
28. We are not aware of any other factors to take into consideration for a further decrease in the level of penalty. The penalty remission percentage has not been changed.

Released under FOI Act 1982 Australian Taxation Office

Penalty summary

29. A penalty, equal to 200% of your SGC, was imposed by law. We have decided to remit some of your penalty. Your final penalty is equal to 120% of your SGC. The table above demonstrates the amounts you now have to pay.
