Importance: High

Good Morning,

Hope you are well. I would like to introduced myself as the appointed support coordinator assisting Ella Galante in the upcoming review which will be conducted end of August.

From my knowledge, this report should not take 3-4 months for release. I've been advised an observation is completed for the initial appointment and a report completed within the next 4 weeks of initial meeting, followed by the capacity building and strategies issued by your professional knowledge.
Can I kindly ask why this report will be taking 3-4 months to complete? This will bypass the review and the reasoning for this report is to help not only the participant but the mother Eliana who is in desperate need for capacity building and behavioural assistance for Ella. The mother doesn't not know where to turn for this assistance, and is at complete carers burn out. I referred Ella to ORS knowing the reports are very detailed and prompt. This referral was sent on the 09/06/21.
I would appreciate you calling myself and not Eliana for conversations of this, as she is in need of assistance with the complex NDIS system, hence why I'm here.

If you are unable to provide this report within the dates of the upcoming plan, unfortunately we will need to seek alternative assistance from another provider to gain the report Ella needs.

Look forward to hearing from you, nsure they call myself so I can push back.

This report should at no point take 3-4 months. The report should have not been finalised until we advised so. They went ahead and approved this without the approval.

I will be call them today and stating this is not good enough and report must be released prior to the upcoming review.

Subject: RE: RE: Ella Galante

Hi Chantelle,

I'm sure you are on right side and also want the best for Ella just like we do because I wouldn't want to think I have referred my client to an organisation that is against participants.
If we do not support and believe our clients then who will?

Caring for a child with a disability is challenging, the obstacles they face require extra patience, compassion, and energy than caring for a child without a disability. The NDIS exists to provide support for the extra care and support required because of a person's disability. Parental responsibility refers to the tasks required of you as a parent a child but where does this end ? I think the best way to explore this concept is with an example scenario:
Eliana is a mother and a wife to her FIFO husband and they both share another child together. Ella requires physical support as she does not understand dangers and places herself in unsafe situations at times, Eliana's husband does shift work for a mining company and is often away on 2:1 and 4:1 rosters and again at times this changes. Eliana is a full-time mum looking after the 2 children, running the house and ensuring everybody's needs gets met.

During the planning meeting a conversation was had with her NDIS planner, she told them that she is struggling to keep up with all the needs of her children, she is finding it especially difficult in the day-care mornings/and non day-care morning's, where she must wash and get Ella ready, then the other sibling. Eliana does one task and then gets distracted constantly which results in constant supervision by Eliana and her behavioural issues linked to her disabilities. She says that her own health has deteriorated from the stress of caring for the children and has resulted in to complete carer's burn out.

Eliana is requesting assistance with support workers to give her more time after day-care to run around to therapy appointments, assistance for 3 hours in the morning for Ella so that she can conduct and complete her parental responsibilities to her other child who has so far been placed on the back burner. A support person to take Ella to swimming lessons, community based activities to keep the social interaction there and build her capacity and most importantly overnight respite to prevent carer's burnout. She says that she doesn't like the idea of sending Ella away but doesn't know what else to do as sh e isn't coping. This is also putting a huge strain on Eliana's marriage.

Let's breakdown those requests and consider what is "parental responsibility" and what is "disability specific need"

- Meal preparation – for most Australian children living at home their parents are responsible for the preparation of meals. Even though Eliana makes the point that she spends a lot of time taking her child to therapies (disability specific)

- Self-care for Ella – most 3-year-old girls without a disability would be expected to get themselves up and ready for day care at this age to a point. They would have the capacity to perform all self-care tasks and pack their bags. Because of Ella's disability, she requires support from her mum to get ready in the morning, something that most parents would not have to do. In this instance this would be considered a disability specific support and would likely be funded.

- Supports for Ella – most 3-year-old girls without a disability require some support to get ready for day care and any other activities to even leave the house. Eliana has stated that Ell's difficulty with getting ready for day care is due to lack of attention, getting distracted and monstrous tantrums again linked to her disabilities. Before funded supports would be put in place for assisting Ella in the mornings and throughout the day the NDIS would consider whether any therapist had developed strategies to be used at home (such as a visual tracking chart) and whether these had been implemented to build Ella's capacity to do these things herself. The NDIS may also consider whether by bringing supports in for Ella, her mum will now have more capacity to work with Ella on her morning routine.

- Overnight respite – as previously stated caring for a child with a disability requires extra resources as a parent than caring for a child without a disability. In this instance, Eliana is providing 100% of her children's care while her husband works away and has 1 child with higher needs. If her child did not have disabilities it is unlikely that she would feel the need for respite support. Eliana has stated that she doesn't feel comfortable in sending her child to overnight respite but does not know what else to do. In this instance she could consider accessing in home support to supervise the children in her own home while she sees to the million other things a mother/wife/ human being must do. This would be considered a disability specific support and would likely be funded.

The NDIS is new, it's big and it's complicated. It can be easy to get caught up or confused by red tape, legislation and all the different information that's flying around. I have stated the above and examples for your knowledge to give some insight and some tips into how decisions and how you can support this family and child to get the right supports the first time around.

Kind Regards

Subject: RE: RE: Ella Galante

Hi Terri,

Please see below responses and an updated report for your records. I have updated this for Ellie. Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Here are my comments:

- If it is a Functional Capacity Assessment could it consistently be referred to that throughout the report, in one section it says OT assessment.

This has been amended throughout the report

- As the report is for a child the chronological age should in my opinion be included. That way we all know how old Ella was at the time without having to calculate.

This has been added to the first line of the background.

- Did they not review other reports / information? - diagnostic report, speech letter….

This has been noted on the report.

- It would be very helpful if the Vinelands summary score tables were attached as an appendix. That way we can see which areas scored the lowest and what is the priority for intervention. Plus it would have an age equivalence that we can refer to and thus highlight need.

We summaries this information in our report to prevent misinterpretation. I have updated what I can to include more information to prevent this.

- There is no information indicating the severity of the maladaptive behaviours. Score of 19 is elevated. And for her to achieve that for internalising there would be some other items that she scored on. It can be useful to include the “sometimes” behaviour also.

I have updated this to read better. There was no sometimes behaviour identified.

- The recommendations is particularly difficult to follow. They should NOT be stating recommended support hours for ORS Services, rather Ella’s needs. When I first read it I thought that they had not included support coordination, but it was in the table. I think we risk them just looking at the table and missing information.

I have amended the table, so hopefully this is easier to follow for you. The reference to ORS in the recommendations is a normal business practice for us and many other providers. Whether the family choose to use ORS is their choice.

- It does not appear to state at any point in time that her current funding level is inadequate and that she requires increased in supports. Best to spell things out so as to not be overlooked.

I have included a line that there needs to be sufficient support for ea rly intervention to be effective.

- In terms of speech therapy – Palmer has stated that she is hoping to have Ella do 45 mins in her letter. My maths calculates 45mins x 48 weeks (allowing for 4 weeks leave) = 36 hours, plus 2 hours for a review report = 38 hours…. That does not allow for any liaison with team members, preparation of supports for home or attendance at meeting or visit to daycare….

I have increased speech to 50 hours to cover almost weekly intervention which will support early intervention. The family are able to choose how they spend the IDL funding, so this split can be used to prioritise speech if this is what the family choose.

- Consumables – would add to it visual supports.

Not sure what you mean, however, I have updated the consumables section.

- Do they not think that support worker is needed? I know that it can be difficult to have it included in younger children's plan. But when we are looking at level 3 ASD I always push for it and relate it to the goals.

I would be disinclined to recommend a support worker for a 3 yo, even with ASD3, it's not unreasonable to expect a parent to look after a 3 you for a majority of the time when not in day care. With the addition of weekly therapies it is reasonable to expect the family to care for Ella. This may be a recommendation down the track. We have used our clinical reasoning for this.

- There is also no referenced to group intervention for social skills development.

There are plenty of mainstream service options to support in this way, plus Ella attends day-care. It is expected that she will be attending school in the coming year also, so will be engaging with peers which will support her socially.

That does not allow for any liaison with team members, preparation of supports for home or attendance at meeting or visit to daycare….
- Consumables – would add to it visual supports.
- Do they not think that support worker is needed? I know that it can be difficult to have it included in younger children's plan. But when we are looking at level 3 ASD I always push for it and relate it to the goals.

Hi Ellena,

We have the below to be implemented if possible.

Here are my comments:

- If it is a Functional Capacity Assessment could it consistently be referred to that throughout the report, in one section it says OT assessment.
- As the report is for a child the chronological age should in my opinion be included. That way we all know how old Ella was at the time without having to calculate.
- Did they not review other reports / information? - diagnostic report, speech letter….
- It would be very helpful if the Vinelands summary score tables were attached as an appendix. That way we can see which areas scored the lowest and what is the priority for intervention. Plus it would have an age equivalence that we can refer to and thus highlight need.
- There is no information indicating the severity of the maladaptive behaviours. Score of 19 is elevated. And for her to achieve that for internalising there would be some other items that she scored on. It can be useful to include the "sometimes" behaviour also.
- The recommendations is particularly difficult to follow. They should NOT be stating recommended support hours for ORS Services, rather Ella's needs. When I first read it I thought that they had not included support coordination, but it was in the table. I think we risk them just looking at the table and missing information.
- It does not appear to state at any point in time that her current funding level is inadequate and that she requires increased in supports. Best to spell things out so as to not be overlooked.
- In terms of speech therapy – Palmer has stated that she is hoping to have Ella do 45 mins in her letter. My maths calculates 45mins x 48 weeks (allowing for 4 weeks leave) = 36 hours, plus 2 hours for a review report = 38 hours…. That does not allow for any liaison with team members, preparation of supports for home or attendance at meeting or visit to daycare….
- Consumables – would add to it visual supports.
- Do they not think that support worker is needed? I know that it can be difficult to have it included in younger children's plan. But when we are looking at level 3 ASD I always push for it and relate it to the goals.
- There is also no referenced to group intervention for social skills development.

Can I kindly request the copy of the Vinelands score summary table I can reference it my report.

Hope that helps.

Hi Maria,

Thank you for your email below. I have attached the FCA that has been completed.
As discussed on the phone, I feel with your knowledge in Ella's diagnosis, you are liquid gold and would love your input in some areas if possible. Team work makes the dream work!

A s48 has been lodged and approved for a review, which is currently sitting with the reviews team. This review will be conducted in the next few weeks. I will advise once I have the dates. In regards to your input and the lack of funding that was given In the last review, I feel it will be extremely beneficial for Ella on her upcoming review, if you were to attend on the phone. I will also be attending to assist and push back where need be. Due to the lack of funding, we are not charging Ella's plan with the work we are doing as Ella Is in dyer need of more funding for all the therapies, capacity building and child intervention. This also will take a lot off Eliana, as she is nearly in the carers burn out mode. This is not what we want.

If you have any questions, don't hesitate to ask.

Yes I am happy to be dialled in for the meeting. Depending on any government restrictions at the time I am happy for us to use our rooms to limit the number of dial ins. Have done that with a couple of families and it means that we can pass notes / comments to each other about what we are thinking. The room as you know is large so we will be fine in terms of distancing.

Hi Eliana,

This is for the behaviour support we discussed on the phone, This will be a extra report for Ella's Behaviours and assist her capacity building. This is highly recommended for children with Autism to gain the correct funded therapies in the next NDIS plan and also help the parents.

The NDIS funds specialised behaviour intervention support which, as outlined by the NDIS Commission, is about creating individualised strategies with people experiencing disability that are responsive to the person's needs, in a way that reduces occurrence and impacts of behaviours of concern and minimises the use of restrictive practices strategies.

Let me know if you still want to go ahead with this referral ??

Subject: RE: Ella Galante

Hi Ellena,

Thank you for your extensive report. I would like to have the report amended with the correct information relayed by the mother. Due to the current plan received, Eliana is very concerned this could potentially gain less funding in what is actually required for all of Eliana's therapies.

One of the amendments is toileting situation -
Ella does not hold Eliana's hand to advise she needs to go to the toilet.
She is far from being ready/interested in toilet training. The potty Ella is currently uses as a hat and is petrified of sitting on the potty. Ella is currently still in nappies and is heavily reliant on nappies. Much need training in this area.

Ella is far from being violent or aggressive. In saying this, Ella has broken 3 windows at home along with two TVs. Eliana feels this could be a sensory related issue, but a behaviour support plan could be implemented (Ella currently on the waiting list). Ella loves to use different utensils for different sounds, Ella runs all of her toys and sometimes her own nails along all the walls of the house. Eliana has given up on painting or maintaining the house hold décor as they're all full of marks and dents.
The furniture at home, plants outside, books, all damaged. If it's in Ella's vision she will be in damage control, To the point Eliana has baby gated the entire house to stop Ella from damaging the house and any damage or harm she can also put on herself.

Recommendations –
Due to the high intensity of Ella's disabilities, its extremely important to link all the correct services while Ella is young to assist with her capacity.
Can I kindly request you incorporate support coordination as a recommendation to assist this family in gaining all the correct supports for Ella.

I think it's very important to have the fine details incorporated in to this report.
Your assistance is highly appreciated.

Thank you so much for your email below and your recommendations. I would love to continue to bounce of you, as by the sounds of both of us we want the absolute best outcome for Ella.

I have attempted to call calm and collected as I know they are very detailed with sensory needs and behaviour management. I unfortunately cannot get through and know the wait list is quite extensive. I have left detailed voice mail.

Do you have any other recommendations for other companies that can provide a good service and strategy plan for Ella?
