12/10/2021	Luke Hazelwood	2 hrs	Attachments	Observation, Email & ongoing strategies	Hi Brianna, Thanks for allowing me in the school to observe James in the classroom. It was great to see James engaged and attending to the group activity. Hazel, James came first in the class in an activity where they had to chose opposites on the ipad which was the hidden learning I had discussed before. During the time of this observation, James was visibly happy, engaged well and transitioned to breaktime in the same space. James was constantly seeking praise and reinforcement so the introduction of hidden learning-based activities as discussed before will really help with James building his self-esteem. If possible, could we reimplement the EPS again for 1 full week with James attending school for the full week. Positive reinforcement will be given quite frequently within the school setting, and if we could also complete at home that will be good. The more consistent the supports, the more likely James is to let down them barriers and seek reinforcement in a positive light rather than the negative one. Hazel, if you could reward James for his effort today, that would be great and mark today as a green day (Good) then complete again tomorrow. 3 green days for the week leads to a reward on Friday. This will also be implemented in the school. Brianna, I will give you a call again on Friday to see how James week has gone and set the plan for next week.	$387.98
